

Steel and Glory

Bad Baby
Productions

With a battle cry the dwarf warrior slammed his battle hammer into the skull of the skeleton before him. The animated bones flew part with the power of the dwarf's blow, as the momentum carried his hammer into the next skeleton with almost the same amount of might. All about him his battle brothers crushed the necromancer's undead soldier, the weak skeletons going down as fast as the foul magic could reanimate them. The dwarf began to sing a battle song, the words carried by his brother nearby as they works at the slaughter before them.

This is Steal and Glory, the newest Mini-Game from Bad Baby Productions. A fast paced skirmish game of battle, skill and guts, Steel and Glory allows players to field small bands of warriors, who will then fight bloody engagements. Each set within the system will cover two different forces, and also offer new battle tiles, new abilities and new excitement. So don't wait, gather your warriors to you and fight for the glory of your chosen lord.

Introductions

Steel and Glory is a fast system for running skirmish level battles among classic fantasy forces, either in one on one fights, or involving large war bands.

Fully expandable, each set will offer players new characters, new Battle Tiles, and new rules so that their games can expand into full-fledged wars of glory.

Game Construction

Once you are ready to play Steel and Glory, the first thing you will find necessary is to construct the game components. For the most part, the amount of time and extra expense you are willing to put into the game's construction is up to you. The simplest format is to print up all the needed parts and then just cut them out and go to it. Paper pieces are though, a bit difficult to deal with, so if you wish to continue to play Steel and Glory over and over again, and we hope you do, then you may want to invest a bit of time and effort in making your game components more durable and usable.

Suggestions on Component's Construction and Printing

First off, you should, if you want to spend the money, buy some good quality paper. Use this to print out the various components and counters. High end paper will give you a better quality image and if you set your printer to its highest quality setting, you should get a nice set of counters and cards. Next, get your hands on some spray glue.

(Available at most craft stores and office supply stores) Use this to mount the components onto thick card stock or chipboard. This will make the parts easier to pick up and use, which generally creates a better overall experience. Should you wish, you can protect your many parts with a clear, self-adhesive, sheet of lamination. (Again available at most office supply stores).

Plastic or metal miniatures can of course be used to replace the paper counters we have supplied, so have fun looking for the right figure to match what you need.

Cards are supplied with a front and back, so just print up a copy and then fold them along the seam. Glue the two parts together and you have a nice card for use in the game. If you like, you may laminate these cards, or buy protective cards sleeves for them. As you may want to use a washable marker on these cards to record damage and other effects, this protective sheath is suggested.

Getting Started

Once you have the game parts ready for use, you are ready to start a game. First you will need to pick a scenario to play. Set up the game's Battle Tiles as dictated in the scenario and buy your characters as outlined for that game. Each player should then gather the needed counters and cards for the faction they will play, and prepare to start the game.

Each player should then roll 1D6, with the highest roller getting to place one of their characters on the Battle Tiles as dictated by the scenario. The second player then may place one of their characters, and so forth, until each player has placed all of their characters. (Note that some scenarios may have different rules for setting up, so read each carefully)

Characters

The game revolves around players using characters from different races and factions to battle their foes. Each character in the game has a series of stats that reflect just what the character can do and how well it performs actions. Each character in the game will come with a data card, showing these stats and other information for that character.

For the most part, all characters in the game are individual and unique. No player may have more than one character of any given type (Unless otherwise stated on the character's data card), although two players can have the same character if they are playing the same faction.

All characters within the game come in two classes, faction based and solos. Faction based characters are part of a race or organization who often work together to overcome their foes. Solo characters, are individual warriors that will work with any faction, if they are paid well or offered some other incentive.

The status of the character thus may have effects within the scenario that you are playing, as outlined in that scenario. Otherwise, there is no difference between the various character types, and all are played the same way and follow the same rules.

Stats

All characters in the game have a series of stats that reflect their abilities. These stats have effects in the game as outlined below.

Attack and Defense

These two stats show how well the character hits and how hard it is to hit the character in combat.

Strength

This is how strong the character is and used in combat and when the character tries to throw objects.

Speed

How fast the character is, the stat determines not only when the character gets to go in a turn, but how often.

Some characters will have a split speed, showing two or more numbers. This reflects characters that are very fast, and so are able to do more than one action in a turn. Each time the speed for that character comes up in the turn order, it may take two new actions.

Movement

This reflects just how far the character can move on any given move action.

Health

The amount of damage a character may take before it is destroyed and removed from the game.

Will

The overall willpower of the character and a sign of their courage.

Adrenal Points

All characters have adrenal points, which reflects the amount of special abilities the character can perform in a game. The more adrenal points the character has, the more abilities it can use, and or, the more powerful those abilities might be. Each time a special ability is used, a set amount of adrenal points must be spent. When a character has used all of their adrenal points for the game, they cannot use any more of those special abilities.

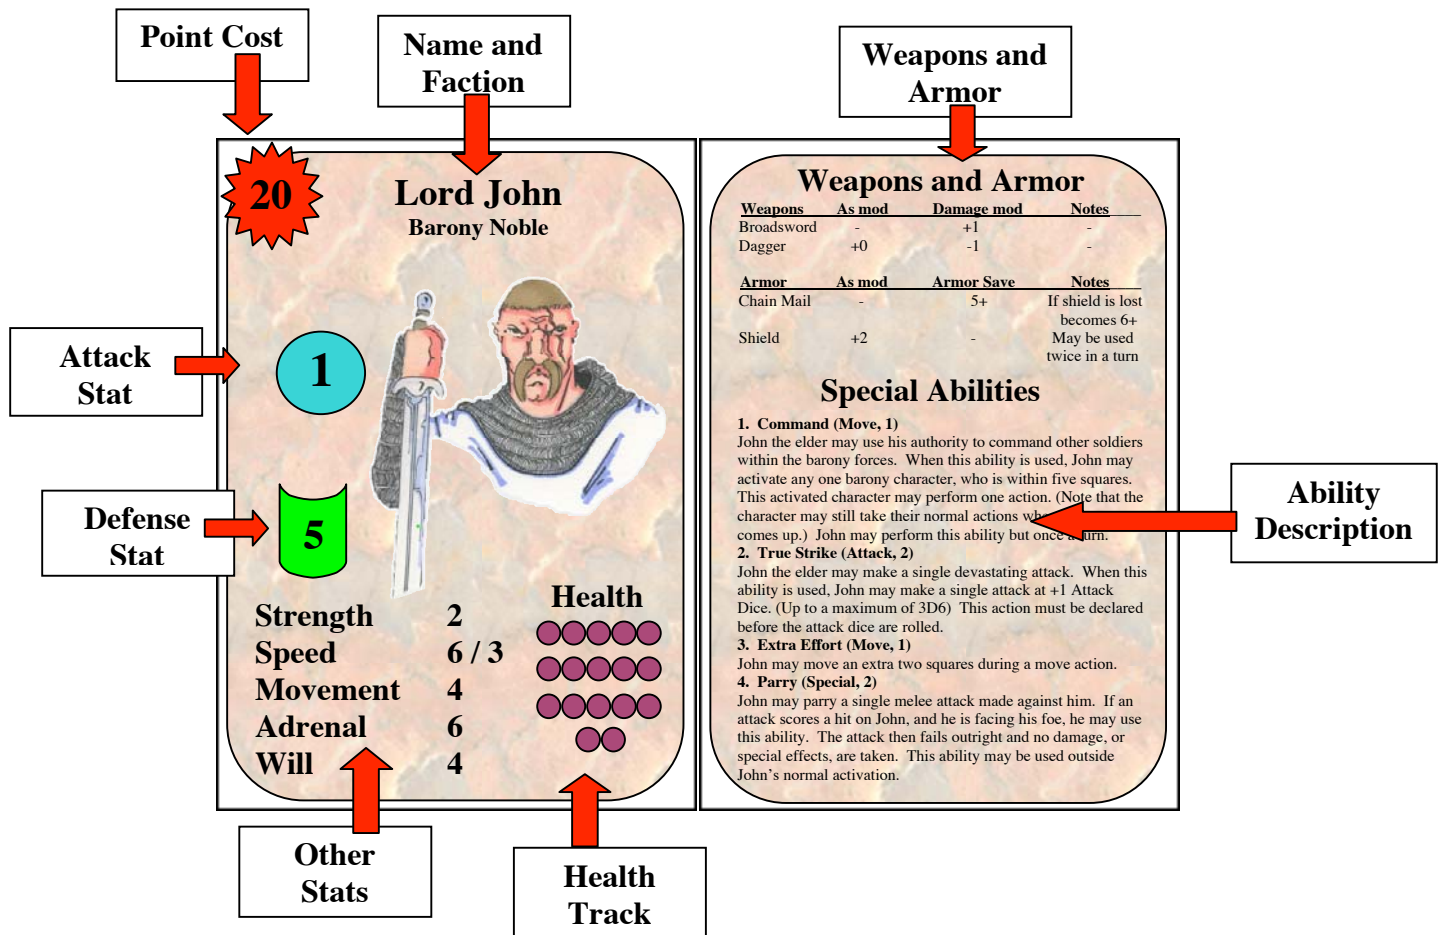

Adrenal points though, can be regenerated by various means, the most common being by magic and resting.

Character Abilities

All characters will have one or more special abilities that it may activate during the course of the game. Each ability will generally cost a set amount of adrenal points to activate, so read each carefully to be sure on how the ability works and how much it will cost.

Some abilities will be activated during the movement action of a character's activation, while others are used only during the attack phase, so be sure to read each description to be sure when it is activated and used.

Battle Tiles

Steel and Glory is played on a series of Battle Tiles, which reflect different parts of the landscape that battles will take place on. Each tile is made up of a series of squares, which the characters will move about and battle upon. Each square represents a 5' x 5' area and can be occupied by only a single character, monster or object.

Tiles are designed to butt up to each other so as to create large areas to battle upon. The scenario that is being played will tell you which tiles to use and the configuration they will be placed in.

All Battle Tiles must butt up to each other and fully connect to the tiles next to it. Tiles may not overhang other tiles, or overlap tiles when they are placed.

This is just a sample of the goodies you will find within the game.

Special Abilities

1. Death Field (Attack, 1)
The very presence of the Wraith can drain the life of the living. When this ability is used, all non-undead within five squares of the Wraith suffer two hits of damage. Armor will not stop this effect.
2. Death Touch (Attack, 1)
The touch of the Wraith carries the cold of the grave. When this ability is used, the Wraith makes a melee attack, but without any weapons. If a hit is scored, the Wraith ignores the damage delivered, but instead does 1D6 hits to the targets Health. Armor will not stop this damage.
3. Undead (Special, 0)
Undead are immune to Poison, fear and other psychology. Any non-undead that wishes to move next to the creature must pass a will test. (At -1 to the die roll).

Worlds of Wonder

Worlds of Wonder is a fast, simple to play RPG system designed for use by advance players who wish to create detailed characters without having to roll on endless charts and deal with endless rules.

After 30 some years of playing, running and designing games, be they RPG's or board games, we at Bad Baby have come to one conclusion. Its not the game's rules that make it enjoyable, but the people your play with. With that in mind, Worlds of Wonder takes the most important aspect of any RPG, the character creation, and tries to offer players, and their GM, the tools needed to make the time they spend together playing, well worth the time spent.

Yes Worlds of Wonder will offer you a detailed combat system, and several magic options, but the majority of the information presented will deal with the creation of your character and the many options that will be open to you.

What we have tried to present to you with Worlds of Wonder is a detail means of generating the kind of characters that you will both find enjoyable, and a system that will keep you thinking on just what to do next with those characters.

Worlds of Wonder offers players, and GMs, a fully developed RPG system. The core system rules comes with the following...

- * A fully illustrated set of rules, completely booked marked for easy use.
- * Rules for generating and running a game using the WoW System,
- * An RPG system that is fully expandable, and easy to use.
- * 15 Skill Sets, each with 4 skills and 10 levels of advancement within each skill.
- * Over 100 Arcane spells, set within 5 schools of magic.
- * Over 100 Divine spells, set within several generic faiths.
- * 20 fully detailed monstrous foes to battle, with hundreds more coming soon.
- * A full color character sheet.
- * Lifetime updates should we upgrade and or revises the system in any way.
- * A full copy of the core rules set in a print friendly format.

Besides the core system, we here at Bad Baby are also including, for free, a copy of out most popular Battle Tile sets, Dungeon Chambers. Use these full color battle tiles to liven up your RPG games and to run the many battles you will encounter while adventuring in Worlds of Wonder.

Worlds of Wonder Expansions
